MY GARDEN and YOURS

5330

Lydia Marshall Green

ONE of the happiest signs in this return of spring points to an undeniable revival of interest in the home garden—a genuine interest involving the hands as well as the heart, a real back-to-the-soil movement most encouraging for both garden and gardener.

Garden Clubs everywhere are heralding and rejoicing in the rejuvenation.

Having longed for and perhaps anticipated some such boon to the patient and deserving gardens, many of which have been more or less neglected for several years, I have worked very hard all winter on simple, helpful schemes to bring back all the gaiety and brightness possible through regrouping and recombining perhaps or by adding new color spots or bloom succession.

And I want very much to introduce you to some lovely new things never shown in this country before—novelties chosen with the hope of giving to your garden distinction and a new interest.

Just a little thought now and planning may preserve to you a precious source of courage which is needed as well and shared by every soul who passes and breathes in the beauty of your flowers.

Will you let me help you?

Mr. Richardson Wright, Editor of "House and Garden," and one of America's greatest horticulturists, writes me:

"March 13, 1933. Your catalogue is very interesting. The assortment of plant material is sufficiently diverse to please the fastidious and the amateur alike. It is encouraging to find a counsellor in artistic gardens who also knows about plants. I am afraid too many of our landscape architects pursue architecture more than they do gardening. Faithfully yours, (Signed) Richardson Wright, Editor."

My garden classes in the history, growing and arranging hardy flowers in borders according to color and varieties, will begin May 16 and 19. All Perennials in this folder will be included in the lessons given directly from the growing plants, while in bloom.

Names used in my folder are according to the best authority.

Freshly cut flowers are supplied on order.

I am specializing in Novelties this year.

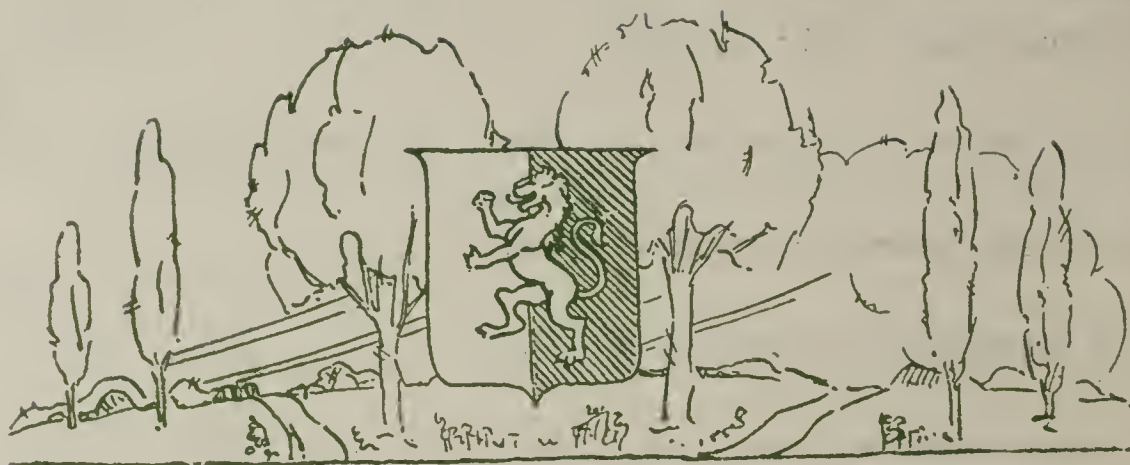

A choice collection of vases are available for rent or sale.

Lectures on "Perennials in Bloom" available to Garden Clubs.

I am in my garden Wednesdays, Saturdays and Sundays; appointments may be arranged for other days.

Herald Tribune Garden Contest 1931

All of the material in the garden which won the grand award in class B was furnished by me.
